

Greenly explains

What is CDP (Carbon Disclosure Project)?

CDP operates the world's leading environmental disclosure system, helping companies measure and manage risks related to climate change, water security, and deforestation.

Search: Deforestation

- Climate change
- Deforestation
- Ozone Depletion
- Marine Eutrophication

Acidification: 0.156135 mol H+ eq

Climate Change: 21.034 Kg CO₂eq

Each year, CDP scores companies based on the quality and completeness of their disclosures to drive greater environmental action and accountability.

Companies can choose to disclose information on climate change, water, and forests — unless specifically requested, they are not required to report on all themes. However, failing to submit a high-quality CDP report can result in a lower score, which may harm investor confidence and damage corporate reputation.

CDP scores are increasingly used by investors, regulators, and customers to assess a company's environmental maturity. A higher score enhances ESG credibility and can lead to stronger business opportunities and stakeholder trust.
